Experience (Highlights):

From July 5 to 8, we had the honor of attending and representing Greece at the "Do IT in Youth Work" project in Šibenik, Croatia. The training seminar brought together 25 educators and youth workers from 12 countries. Its main goal was to train youth workers in methods and tools essential for developing digital skills among young people. Specific objectives included empowering youth workers to create digital strategies, exploring non-formal learning with STEM, and familiarizing participants with digital tools like Plickers, Powtoon, and Nearpod. The event was exceptionally well-organized, offering a modern and welcoming environment. We had the privilege of presenting a best practice previously implemented at school with our students using the digital tool "ARTSTEPS," which was met with great interest from the participants. This seminar laid the groundwork for future collaborations
